Attention Self-Advocates:

- Do you want to work for human rights in your community?
- Do you want to work to be a leader in our state?
- Are you involved in a self-advocacy group?

If so, read on.

You are invited to apply to be part of the 2017 class of ACT's recently launched leadership training program, the Olmstead Academy. Starting in January, the Academy will train 21 leaders from across the state. These new leaders, in teams of three, will spend 2017 helping push for human rights for people with disabilities. In particular, they will work on projects that help people in their own communities to be more integrated in the community.

This packet tells you about ACT's Olmstead Academy and how to apply. Please read through it. If you are interested, please gather your team of three and apply. The deadline is October 28, 2016 at 5:00 pm.

What is Olmstead Ruling?

The Olmstead Ruling helped spark a nationwide push to make sure that Americans with disabilities are included in the community, not segregated.

In 1999, the US Supreme Court ruled that segregation of people with disabilities is illegal. This “Olmstead Decision” said people with disabilities are best served alongside everyone else. They (we) must be integrated in the community as much as possible, with supports necessary. We all belong where everyone else is, whether that's jobs, housing, school, doctor's office, or playing golf. Full supports for full inclusion.

The Minnesota Olmstead Plan

ACT's Olmstead Academy is a response to a unique moment in Minnesota history. Minnesota is now under a court-ordered mandate to increase community integration for people with disabilities -- through devising an “Olmstead Plan” with measureable objectives. This focus on integration has given new energy to the state's self-advocacy movement, to frame its ongoing efforts to secure rights for people with developmental disabilities as part of a larger struggle for the human right of community integration.

What is ACT's Olmstead Academy?

Advocating Change Together has responded to this “Olmstead moment” by launching the Minnesota Olmstead Academy. The Academy is a 12-month program of classroom and fieldwork through which self-advocates are positioned as leaders within state's Olmstead Plan. Using ACT's 37 years of experience in leadership building using the proven methods of popular education, the Olmstead Academy gives participants a hands-on opportunity to learn together and then go help spread the word about integration.

Working in teams, participants carry out an integration project in their own community, and tell what they need to be more integrated in their own community. The 2016 class of the Olmstead Academy is now carrying out their team projects. This coming December, they will present their project results at a public event in the chambers of US Federal District Judge Donovan Frank.

Bottom line: the Olmstead Academy will train self-advocates to help the state create more and better integration. The Academy graduates will be leaders, working in teams to help their communities, help other self-advocates, and help themselves to be more involved in their community life.

How does ACT's Olmstead Academy work?

Academy participation is by team. Seven teams of three will be accepted for the class of 2017. Teams will attend two "classroom" sessions in the Twin Cities area, late January (four days), and mid-April 2016 (three days). These exciting sessions will be led by ACT instructors and community experts with experience in human rights leadership. Teams will be guided to choose a local project, and then work to implement it between and after the sessions, finishing in December 2017. Teams will be paired with organizer mentors to help them with their project. Each team will also be given funds to use for paying expenses that are part of their projects.

More Questions Answered

Where do Academy participants stay?

The program includes seven (7) nights at the Doubletree By Hilton in downtown St. Paul.

January Session: You will arrive in St. Paul and check into your hotel room on Sunday evening, January 29th and check out of your hotel room on Thursday morning, February 2nd (four nights).

April Session: You will arrive in St. Paul and check into your hotel room on Tuesday evening April 18th and check out of your hotel room on Friday morning April 21st (three nights).

Your lodging cost depends on if you share a room or have a single room. If you are able to share a double room with another Olmstead Academy participant, you each pay $78.95 per night ($69.50 + $9.45). If sharing a room does not work for you, your per night cost is $157.90 ($139.00 + $18.90 tax). Once you decide the type of room that works for you, ACT will make your hotel room reservation. ACT will send an invoice to your group for your hotel stay.

Where does the Academy meet? All Academy sessions will be held in the Department of Employment and Economic Development (DEED) meeting rooms, just a few blocks away from the hotel. (DEED is in the First National Bank Building 332 Minnesota St., Suite E200 St. Paul, MN 55101-1351.) We will walk together to and from the meeting location and the hotel.

Are meals covered? Some are, some aren't. The Academy provides lunch and refreshment breaks each day. Participants are responsible for paying their own breakfast and dinner each day, as scheduled. This will involve five (5) dinners and up to seven (7) breakfasts, totaling about $190.00. Note: if you choose not to eat a full breakfast, cereal and juice will be available one-half hour prior to each morning session.

Is transportation covered? No. Transportation to and from St. Paul is not covered. There is also a charge to park your vehicle at the hotel.

Program costs? Participants do not have to pay any program costs. The costs for this twelve-month program are completely covered by DHS, our lead program sponsor, and other sponsors (at $13,300 per team).

Other costs? Participants only pay for their own lodging (approx. $553 for shared room) and some of the meals (approx. $190). Total cost for meals and lodging will be about $743 per participant.
